Fernwood.

"Fernwood" is an ideal summer home for the poor children of Newark's crowded districts. It is situated on a pretty knoll just above Bloomfield. Forty or more children are in all of the parties which find their way to this place.

The home is simply furnished. Has a bath room for girls and one for boys, a separate kitchen connected with the main building by a bridge. From the porch one sees a beautiful stretch of country, and although so near the city all the noise and bustle is forgotten in the quiet beautiful woods about the home. These woods make a delightful playground for the lively youngsters. Pure, wholesome, plain food is supplied. This, together with goodies brought by some of the visitors, satisfies the appetites of all, and they reluctantly return to their homes where they must do without the freedom of the open country. They return looking brighter, stronger, and with keener ambition for something better and higher in life. All parties remain for two weeks. The girls to Fernwood are well spent.

The boys work about the grounds in the morning cleaning up, and the girls help with the duties of the household before they go to their play. Some weave hats, baskets, and other little trinkets to take home. (The little children pass some time with kindergarten employments. This work is done under a trained kindergartner.) All the contributions of the Union Bible Class go toward the support of Fernwood. Nearly all money is forwarded to the Treasurer, but if sent to Fernwood direct the matron will take charge of same and see that it is placed to the Fresh Air Home.

Old Fashioned Picnic.

The committee in charge of the old fashioned picnic and athletic carnival which will be held in Glenwood Park next Saturday afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the Church of the Sacred Heart, are working hard to get the park, etc., in first-class condition, arranging a large number of amusing novelties for the amusement of the large number of people, who, it is expected will attend. At two o'clock the athletic games will start and will comprise 100 yard dash running high and broad jump, hop step and jump, and putting the shot. Prizes will be given to the winner of each event. At five o'clock the tug of war between the Lyceum and A. O. H. teams will take place, and promises to be very interesting. Dancing to Coffman's music will begin at four.

Canal Property Titles.

Henry W. Runyon, the attorney of the Morris Canal Commission, is now engaged in searching titles to ascertain the rights and interests of the Morris Canal Company in the several properties through which the canal passes; whether these properties are held in fee simple, by condemnation or reversion, or by gift or occupancy. The canal company reports these several characters of titles under which they hold their landed and other rights. The court records of all the counties which the canal traverses are being searched.

Big Fish.

John Bailey caught three large carp in Third River below Oakes' Pond. One of the fish weighed fifteen pounds, and the other two eleven and one-half pounds each. Old Second Ward residents declare that there are carp in Oakes' Pond that are not short of twenty-five pounds in weight.

Eulogized Pope Leo.

"The Death of Pope Leo and Some Lessons from it" was the subject of the Rev. Dr. C. S. Woodruff's discourse Sunday evening in the Park M. E. Church. Dr. Woodruff said:

"The recent death of Pope Leo XIII, was an event of great interest to both the civil and religious world. He was not only the religious head of millions of people, but his influence in the government of the world was very great. He came to the papacy when its power was at its lowest ebb since the days of the Reformation, and he left it with Romanism ascending to the zenith of power. For while she does not control governments as she once did, and in one sense has lost her temporal power, yet in another sense she has that temporal power in a very large degree. Twenty-five years ago in Germany the strong, iron-willed Bismarck fought the papacy to the utmost, but to-day, because of the rise of socialism, Germany is putting herself at the feet of the papal power that she may receive the help of 'mother church.' Even here in the United States we have at Washington the apostolic delegate, and the influence he wields is more than many imagine or politicians are willing to admit."

"The late Pope was self-styled the 'Prisoner in the Vatican.' He never left the papal enclosure after his election; but, for a prisoner, he exerted great power. His reign was a long one. Only one cardinal not of his appointment will engage in the election of his successor. Not strong in health, he has shown to the world what abstinence and proper care of the body, aided by a strong will, can do to prolong life.

"'Was he saved?' is a question many Protestants ask, a query which seems to be raised by the Catholics themselves, because they offer so many prayers for the 'repose of his soul.' Protestants do not believe in prayers for the dead, and they have no place in our thought. The Pope cannot be affected by the prayers offered for him since the spirit left his body, and if he depended on these his salvation is not assured, but he was, according to his light and life-long training, a devout man, and we must give to him the mercy of God, which alone can save, as Catholics give to us in their thought the only ground for the salvation of Protestants.

"Romanism is a good, compact, well-organized and equipped force in the world. Protestants could well learn many things from Romanism. The loyalty of her people to the church, the fidelity with which they attend the services, the great generosity with which they give, all these and more are things which Protestantism could well wish to see increased among her various denominations.

"But Protestantism has many things which are her glory—which we wish the Roman Church had, namely, her study of the Bible, religious freedom of thought, and the universal priesthood of every true soul and the individual right and privilege of all to come directly to God.

"All are interested in the choice of the Pope's successor. Who he will be no one can now tell. Suffice it to say he must be a man of the spirit of the times. The United States, with only one cardinal, will have more influence than other countries which will have very large numbers. He will be an Italian, but must be filled with American ideas.

"What of the future of the Catholic Church? This is a great question. I hope and pray that with its great numbers and compact organization and great power, it may be stripped gradually, but surely, of those things against which we protest, which are not taught in Scripture; that the charge of idolatry and various forms of corruption may not lie at her doors, and that energized and cleansed by the Holy Spirit she may become one of the great agencies in the evangelization of the world."

Savings Bank Deposits by Mail.

The Bowery Savings Bank is the largest Savings bank in the world. It has more than 140,000 depositors, and its deposits aggregate about eighty-five millions of dollars. It has a surplus of over nine millions of dollars, and therefore is one of the strongest financial institutions in the country.

In order to widen the field of its usefulness, this bank has recently inaugurated a system of "banking by mail," making it possible for depositors to make their deposits and withdrawals through the medium of the Post-office. This method of doing a savings bank business is so simple and so original, that we take pleasure in bringing the matter to the notice of our readers.
